

FINDING AN OCCUPATIONAL THERAPIST Australia

There are two ways you can find an occupational therapist - being referred by a healthcare professional or self-referring.

Reference by a healthcare professional:

If you are being referred to an OT by a healthcare professional or through NDIS, you will typically be referred to a specific provider who specialises in the relevant area. Once you have your reference from a healthcare professional or NDIS, all you will need to do is contact the OT you have been referred to set up an appointment.

Self-referring:

If you want to self-refer, there are a few more steps in the process. To get the most out of your sessions, you will want to find an OT who specialises in the area.

Occupational Therapy Australia has a register of OTs in Australia, filtered by specialisation and funding source. You can use this to search for an OT who specialises in the right area to meet your needs.

If you are using a word of mouth recommendation, make sure to check that they are registered with the Occupational Therapy Board and hold a current practicing certificate. The Board has a register of all OTs operating in Australia and their certification details. Search your OT by name to verify they can practice

For further information, please see the
OT Australia website.